

Did you ever hear the saying, big things come in small packages?

Here's a story about someone your age who found out how big things can come in small packages. Work with a partner to complete the story. Have one person ask the other for the correct part of speech to fill in each blank, but don't read the sentences! When you're done, you'll find out how Derek is inspired to dream big.

Derek walked _____ home from school, his head down and his _____ slumped. Basketball tryouts were tonight, and at just 5 feet 3 inches tall, he didn't think he stood a chance of _____ ing the team. He entered his _____ and went straight to the _____, where his mother had prepared a _____ snack for him.

"You'll be great!" his mom said confidently, _____ ing him on his back.

Derek stared at the delicious _____, red cherry tomatoes, and cheese she had placed on his _____.

"You know," said his mother, "you may be small, but you pack a large _____. Remember how easily you steal the ball from the taller guys on the team? Being a little closer to the ground helps you do that."

Then Derek thought about Muggsy Bogues, who made a name for himself as the smallest player in NBA history. Muggsy was the same height as Derek. Why couldn't Derek make a name for himself, too? Derek finished up his _____, tomatoes, and crackers, drained his glass of _____ milk, and _____ up from the table, and started on his dream of becoming a _____.

He was ready for tryouts!
