Michele Gorham

While rain may have dampened Michele Gorham's first attempt at fundraising, it didn't affect her spirit. The following year she expanded her efforts, combining a series of bake sales with online networking and earned $3500. After that, her efforts expanded again to include 15 events and she raised $9000!

Martha Marak

When Martha Marak learned that Feeding America's Food Bank had been funded to provide 100 hungry children with weekly backpacks, she shared the news with the local principal, who told her that there were really 300 children in need. Ms. Marak located additional funding, and as a result, all 300 children got a backpack every weekend.

Louise Hunter

For the past fifty years, Mother Hunter has made it her life's work, to help feed, and shelter the Racine, WI community. Every morning during the school year, she cooked breakfast for the children to have a hot meal before they went to school. And every afternoon, she gave out food to help needy families.

Gerald Syrba

Gerald has volunteered more than 4000 hours assembling more than 8000 food boxes with some 240,000 pounds of food. For his dedication, he was awarded the President's Call to Service award from President Obama.

Ordinary people can do extraordinary things to help fight hunger. What can you do? Volunteer at a food pantry, launch a food drive, write a letter...there are lots of things you can do!
