

Take a Day Time Break to Support Your Child's Mental Wellness

DEAR PARENTS AND CAREGIVERS,

When a child has a physical illness, we know what to do. But navigating mental health concerns can be more challenging. Young people don't wear their thoughts on their sleeves, so we have to check-in and have conversations to understand how they are feeling.

To help you and your child become more informed about mental health, The On Our Sleeves Movement For Children's Mental Health has teamed with the curriculum specialists at Young Minds Inspired to create an in-school mental health wellness program called Take a Day Time Break. The program aims to correct misunderstandings about mental health and provides students with some practical strategies to build empathy and improve self-care.

Backed by mental health experts at Nationwide Children's Hospital, On Our Sleeves aims to break the silence and stigma surrounding children's mental health. We know that one in five children is living with a mental health condition that interferes with everyday life, and that half of all lifetime mental health conditions start by age 14. Kids don't wear their thoughts on their sleeves, so we have to build the habit of checking-in and talking about their thoughts and feelings. Parents and caregivers have a big role to play in building mental wellness.

Conversation Starters

Helping children talk about their thoughts, feelings, and experiences can provide a safe opportunity for them to work through things they are having a hard time handling or that are upsetting them. Below are some "convo starters" the On Our Sleeves team has created to help you discuss everyday thoughts and feelings with your child. Try out a few. You might be surprised by your child's willingness to open up when they know they're supported!

- When you feel sad, what do you think about to help yourself feel happy again?
- Tell me three words to describe yourself.
- What makes you angry? What helps you to feel less angry?
- How has someone been kind to you today? How were you kind to someone else?
- What do you do when someone makes fun of other kids at school?

Meet The Days

The On Our Sleeves Take a Day Time Break mental wellness program is an ongoing mission of Christina and Ryan Day, strong advocates for On Our Sleeves, to help start conversations around children's mental health. The Day Family's commitment extends their social mission to one of the most significant issues facing children and young adults by increasing education, advocacy, and fundraising. ## Take a Day Time Break

At school, your child has learned that taking a day time break for mental wellness can help reduce stress and promote empathy. Spend a few minutes a day taking a break as a family with activities such as giving a compliment to each family member, doing an errand or chore for a neighbor, taking a walk outdoors, or turning the refrigerator door into a gratitude wall with sticky notes. Generate your own day time break ideas together!
