

SCORE FOR THE COMMUNITY!

PART 1 Football season brings exciting sports action to the gridiron. It's also a time to recognize players in the National Football League (NFL) who go the extra mile to help their communities. Each week during the regular season, the NFL Players Association (NFLPA) honors one player who has made a positive impact on his team city or his own hometown by naming him a Community MVP. Read about four honorees from the 2025-26 NFL season.

Garrett Bolles
Denver Broncos

After his son was diagnosed with childhood apraxia — a speech disorder that makes it difficult for children to speak — Garrett Bolles and his wife Natalie opened the Bjorem & Bolles Childhood Apraxia Training Center in Parker, Colorado, to help families facing the same challenge. The center trains speech therapists to work with children with apraxia and provides education and support for families. As Garrett says, "Every child with apraxia deserves a voice."

Osa Odighizuwa
Dallas Cowboys

Osa Odighizuwa knows how hard it can be for a single parent. He and his three brothers were raised by a single mom. To help other single parents in Dallas, Osa hosted a baby shower for 20 single moms and their families. Each guest went home with more than $500 worth of gifts to help prepare for the babies. He is planning to throw a second shower in his hometown of Portland, Oregon.

Jeremy Chinn
Las Vegas Raiders

Jeremy Chinn knows the pain of homelessness because he watched a close relative go through it. At the beginning of this season, he hosted a special kickoff celebration for 90 Nevada teens who were experiencing homelessness. The event included dinner, games, and free haircuts. In addition, each teen was given a backpack, hoodie, shorts, and sandals.

Bijan Robinson
Atlanta Falcons

Bijan Robinson struggled to enjoy reading as a kid, but as he's grown further in his football career, he now understands the power within books. That's why he hosted a huge book fair in his team's football stadium for more than 7,700 Atlanta kids. Bijan read a book to the crowd, and each student took home a gift bag filled with reading materials, snacks, pajamas and a shirt. The event kicked off his BijanReads program, which will work to improve literacy rates and build reading corners at Atlanta schools.

PART 2 Your community also includes people and groups dedicated to helping others. Research one of these local MVPs to find out how they support your community. Use the back of this page if you need more space.

Person/organization: _____

How they make a positive impact on our community:

- _____
- _____
- _____

Families: You can be an MVP in your community, too! Discuss someone you know who could use a helping hand and what you could do to help them. Then choose a task to do!